HARRISBURG, Pa. -- Harrisburg police are looking for three men in Wednesday's fatal shooting.

Police have charged 20-year-old Lemuel Monge-Marrero in connection with the death of Jonathan Martinez, who was shot and killed along South 13th Street.

Police also want to question Marrero's father and brother.

If you know the whereabouts of any of these men, you can confidentially call the Harrisburg police at 717-255-3131.

Rendell Attends Meeting

Meanwhile, Gov. Ed Rendell was among the state and city leaders who attended a crime meeting Thursday night.

Rendell offered state resources to help quiet the streets, including the use of state troopers to patrol the city.

Mayor Stephen Reed also announced city officers have started working 12-hour shifts to put more officers on the streets.

"Putting more cops on the street, getting them out to the street and walking connects the police and community in a more solid way that helps deter crime in the first place," said Mayor Stephen Reed.

Guardian Angels Patrol

More crime fighting help for Harrisburg came from York City.

They also tried to drum up support for a Harrisburg chapter of the Angels and were impressed.

"All of the people coming off the street, talking to us, 'thank you, it's about time,' and of course we give them a paper with a phone number to join when a chapter does come up here," said Andrew Raffensperger, a Guardian Angel.

The Guardian Angels formed the York chapter in October and said crime has dropped 15 percent as a result.

20-Year-Old Man Shot, Killed

Jonathan Martinez, 20, was shot and killed Wednesday afternoon along 13th Street near the I-83 overpass. Witnesses said a car pulled up next to him and someone inside opened fire.

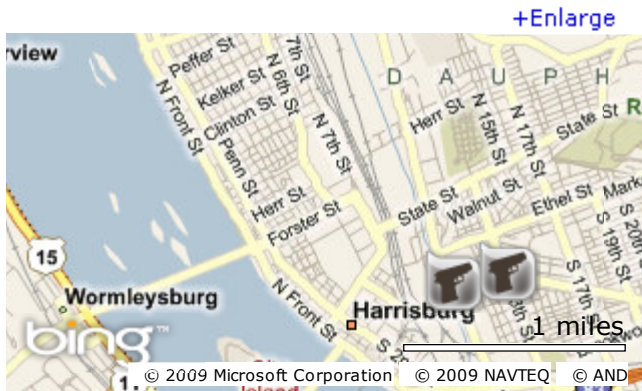

Martinez was shot multiple times. An ambulance took him to the hospital, but he died from his wounds.

Reed said that the homicide was the result of a fight over a female.

The shooting marked the 11th of the month in Harrisburg (see interactive map below).
